

Art lovers rejoice!

There's simply one prerequisite for great art; it MUST catch the eye of the viewer. Whether that's through a cacophony of colors and shapes or through a combination of simple and sophisticated, great art draws (no pun intended) us, in the way that great art is drawn itself.

This is the idea behind Village Frame and Gallery. Owned and operated by Beth Nichols, Village Frame works with you to turn your priceless keepsakes into one-of-a-kind displays. If it can be framed, Village Frame will help you enhance and protect it. Through detailed craftsmanship and exceptional design, the small, hidden elements of every frame create finished products that will surpass your expectations. No matter what your style preference and goals are, Village Frame will work with you every step of the way to create a finished product that will bring pleasure to you for years.

And by years, I mean YEARS. Like any craft, custom framing is not without its challenges, including conservation. Village Frame's team of professionals, however, have a wealth of experience that allows them to provide their customers with an exceptional product in a timely manner. From working in an acid free environment to only offering glass with ultra-violet protection, Village Frame is committed to ensuring the longevity of your new display.

Village Frame and Gallery is also proud to feature and represent some of the finest artists in the world in their art gallery. Their gallery features a large selection of original artwork, prints, and posters. You won't want to miss First Friday—each month, Village Frame stays open until 9 p.m. to showcase their latest exhibits, allowing you to view amazing artistic pieces in a relaxed environment.

Located in the heart of historic Multnomah Village, your next framing project should start and end with a visit to Village Frame and Gallery.
